

Press Release for JA2012 The Society of Japanese Aerospace Companies

July 20, 2010

The Society of Japanese Aerospace Companies (SJAC) is the sole public entity representing the interests of the Japanese aerospace industry and has contributed to the growth of our aerospace industry with a total of 150 major companies in Japan .

SJAC holds an international exhibition almost every four years with participation of the world's major aerospace companies and authorities. Based on the success of JA2008 in Yokohama, we plan to have the next exhibition in Nagoya region.

Nagoya region is Asia's largest hub for aerospace manufacturing and it's combined sales of aerospace components ranks 5th in the world. The region has the international airport opened in 2005 and features suitable place for the aircraft exhibition.

Now we are pleased to have an opportunity to inform about Japan International Aerospace Exhibition 2012 (JA2012) at the Farnborough.

The outline of the JA2012 is as follows;

1. Title

Japan International Aerospace Exhibition 2012
(Japan Aerospace 2012 / JA2012)

2. Concept of JA2012

- ① Aiming at the leading international aerospace exhibition in Asia
- ② The exhibition provides the opportunities to access the most advanced technologies and to exchange views in trade, since the Nagoya region is the largest manufacturing site in Asia.
- ③ Japanese developed aircraft will be exhibited at the international airport.

3. Schedule & Venue
